Aphorism no. -16 - Dynamic influences only can cause and cure diseased vital principle.

Aphorism no. -17 - Physician has to remove only the totality of disease symptoms and the entire disease is removed simultaneously.

Aphorism no. -18 - Totality of symptoms is the only guide to the selection of medicine
Knowledge of medicine-§ 19- 46

Aphorism no. -19 - Curative power of a medicine solely depends on their power of altering the state of man's health.

Aphorism no. -20 - The curative power of medicine can only be ascertained by noting its effects on a healthy person.

September 2022

Dr Walavalkar N N

Aphorisms 21 to 28.

Aphorism no. -21 - Disease curing-power of medicine is same as its disease-producing power.

Aphorism no. -22 - We may either select the medicine which produces similar or dissimilar symptoms to the disease and experience helps us to select a medicine which manifests similar or dissimilar symptoms to the disease Symptomatology.

October 2022

Dr Walavalkar N N

Aphorism no. -23 - Experience and research convince us that the disease symptoms are far from being removed by the medicine, which has opposite symptoms.

Aphorism no. -24 - Experience and careful trials convince us that the disease symptoms are cured by medicine having similar symptoms.

November 2022

Dr Walavalkar N N

Aphorism no. -25 - Careful trials convince us that medicine, which in its action on the healthy human produces greatest number of symptoms similar to those observed in disease, removes the totality of symptoms of disease and health returns permanently, rapidly and gently, in doses of suitable potency and repetition of medicine.

Aphorism No- 26 - This phenomenon is dependent on the homoeopathic law of Nature.

Aphorisms 29 to 35

- Aphorisms 29 – Explanation of Therapeutic law of Nature.
 - Aphorisms 30 - Natural diseases are cured and over-come by the suitable medicine because the human body is readily affected by medicines than by natural diseases.
 - Aphorisms 31 - Morbific noxious agents do not possess the power of morbidly deranging the health of man unconditionally.
 - Aphorisms 32 - Every real medicine acts at all time, under all circumstances and in every living being.
 - Aphorisms 33 - It is undeniably shown by experience that medicinal agents have an absolute unconditional power; greatly superior to the morbific noxious agents that disturb health and produce disease.
 - Aphorisms 34 - Medicinal agents should be capable of producing in the human body an artificial drug disease as similar as possible to the disease in order to effect a cure; greater strength is not the sole cause for it.
- What happens when two dissimilar diseases meet in a person?
- Aphorisms 35 - What happens when a disease is treated with unsuitable allopathic medicine even though it is stronger?

Chapter 5 Discrimination as maintaining external causes & surgical causes
Chapter 6 The unprejudiced observer

Dr Walavalkar N N

Aphorisms 36 to 40.

- Aphorisms 36 - When two dissimilar diseases of equal strength meet in the body, the new disease will be repelled by the body and not allowed to affect it.
- Aphorisms 37 - Under ordinary treatment, an old chronic disease remains uncured and unaltered with the medicine incapable of producing a state of health similar to the disease in the healthy individuals.
- Aphorisms 38 - When two dissimilar diseases meet where the new is stronger and older one is weak, the older one is suspended for the time being and then reappears uncured; they never cure one another.
- Aphorisms 39 - In ordinary treatment with a strong dissimilar medicine the disease is kept in abeyance, merely suppressed, merely suspended as long as the treatment is instituted, it however always returns.
- Aphorisms 40 - The new disease having acted on the organism joins the old dissimilar disease to form a 'complex disease', as they cannot cure or repel each other.

- Aphorisms 72- Types of Dynamic diseases
- Aphorisms 73- Types of Acute disease
- Aphorisms 74, 75, 76- Drug diseases

Dr Walavalkar N N

Aphorisms 41 to 45.

- Aphorisms 41 - Long continued employment of stronger and dissimilar medicine results in a new tedious morbid condition of chronic Nature, giving the patient a double, in place of a single disease often quite incurable.
- Aphorisms 42 - Two dissimilar diseases, according to the law of Nature do not remove, do not annihilate and cannot cure one another, but both can co-exist in the same organism.
- Aphorisms 43 - different is the result when two similar diseases meet in an organism and we should learn a lesson as to how a physician ought to cure.
- Aphorisms 44 - Two similar diseases can neither repel one another, nor suspend one Another.
- Aphorisms 45 - Whenever two similar diseases meet in an organism, the stronger one annihilates the weaker one. The vital principle is seized by the stronger and hence it cannot feel the weaker dynamics.

Aphorisms 46 to 50.

- Aphorisms 46 - Other diseases presenting similar symptoms have homoeopathically cured many natural diseases in the course of nature.
- Aphorisms 47 (69). - How to adapt what is curative in medicine to what is curable in disease, according to clearly defined principles. Nothing better could teach the physician than Nature how he ought to choose the medicine to cure rapidly, gently and in a permanent manner.
- Aphorisms 48 - Neither in Nature nor through the medical art can a dissimilar disease or medicine eradicate the other natural disease only a similar agent can only do so.
- Aphorisms 49 - Unfortunately there are very few diseases, which are similar to other and can cure homoeopathically other natural diseases.
- Aphorisms 50 - Nature has but few diseases as remedial agents and that they have serious disadvantages too.
- Aphorisms 51 - On the other hand, the physician has many remedial agents possessing greater advantages.
- Aphorisms 52 - There are thus two chief methods of treatment:
(a) The homoeopathic (similar), (b) The allopathic (opposite)
- Aphorisms 53 - The pure homoeopathic art is the only correct method, only one possible way to cure natural diseases; it is unquestionable as pure experience teaches us a proper one, as it is based on the internal, infallible law of Nature.
- Aphorisms 54 - Antipathic, palliative allopathic method of treatment utilizes many things against diseases but usually improper ones; it comprises of so many systems; each one believes that in diseases only the morbid matter is to be removed; when these methods are classified and the materia medica are constructed these are full of conjunctures and compound prescriptions
- Aphorisms 55 - The allopathic method is palliative only.

- Aphorisms 56 to 60.
- Aphorisms 56 - For the past seventeen centuries they hoped to win the confidence of their patients with these palliatives which are fundamentally unhelpful and hurtful methods of treatment that ought to have been avoided.
 - Aphorisms 57 - Allopathic method only treats a single symptom of the disease with the medicine having an action opposite to the disease.
 - Aphorisms 58 - Observations prove that after temporary relief, aggravation follows in every case with this method.
 - Aphorisms 59 - Injurious effects of some antipathic modes of treatment.
 - Aphorisms 60 - Increasing the dose at every palliation of the palliative never cures but induces further harm in chronically ill patients.

Chapter-1 Homoeopathy The Science Of Therapeutics

Chapter-2 Antagonism Between Homoeopathy And Allopathy

Dr. Vaishali Sawant

Revision of § 1- 25

Dr Walavalkar N N

§ 26 - This phenomenon is dependent on the homoeopathic law of Nature.

§ 27 - The curative power of medicine depends on the symptoms they have similar to the disease.

§ 28 & 29- Attempt to explain the therapeutic law of Nature.

§30 - Natural diseases are cured and over-come by the suitable medicine because the human body is readily affected by medicines than by natural diseases. §31 - Morbific noxious agents do not possess the power of morbidly deranging the health of man unconditionally.

§32 - Every real medicine acts at all time, under all circumstances and in every living being.

§33 - It is undeniably shown by experience that medicinal agents have an absolute unconditional power; greatly superior to the Morbific noxious agents that disturb health and produce disease.

§34 - Medicinal agents should be capable of producing in the human body an artificial drug disease as similar as possible to the disease in order to effect a cure; greater strength is not the sole cause for it.

- What happens when two dissimilar diseases meet in a person?

- §35 - What happens when a disease is treated with unsuitable allopathic medicine even though it is stronger?

- §36 - When two dissimilar diseases of equal strength meet in the body, the new disease will be repelled by the body and not allowed to affect it.

- §37 - Under ordinary treatment, an old chronic disease remains uncured and unaltered with the medicine incapable of producing a state of health similar to the disease in the healthy individuals.

- §38 - When two dissimilar diseases meet where the new is stronger and older one is weak, the older one is suspended for the time being and then reappears Uncured; they never cure one another.
- §39 - In ordinary treatment with a strong dissimilar medicine the disease is kept in abeyance, merely suppressed, merely suspended as long as the treatment is instituted, it however always returns.
- §40 - The new disease having acted on the organism joins the old dissimilar disease to form a 'complex disease', as they cannot cure or repel each other.
- §41 - Long continued employment of stronger and dissimilar medicine results in a new tedious morbid condition of chronic Nature, giving the patient a double, in place of a single disease often quite incurable.
- §42 - Two dissimilar diseases, according to the law of Nature do not remove, do not annihilate and cannot cure one another, but both can co-exist in the same organism.
- §43 - different is the result when two similar diseases meet in an organism and we should learn a lesson as to how a physician ought to cure. can cure homeopathically other natural diseases.

Revision of §71-82

Dr Walavalkar N N

- §44 - Two similar diseases can neither repel one another, nor suspend one Another.
- §45 - Whenever two similar diseases meet in an organism, the stronger one annihilates the weaker one. The vital principle is seized by the stronger and hence it cannot feel the weaker dynamics.
- §46 - Other diseases presenting similar symptoms have homeopathically cured many natural diseases in the course of nature.
- §47 (69) - How to adapt what is curative in medicine to what is curable in disease, according to clearly defined principles.
- Nothing better could teach the physician than Nature how he ought to choose the medicine to cure rapidly, gently and in a permanent manner-§ 47
- §48 - Neither in Nature nor through the medical art can a dissimilar disease or medicine eradicate the other natural disease only a similar agent can only do so.
- §49 - Unfortunately there are very few diseases, which are similar to other and
- §50 - Nature has but few diseases as remedial agents and that they have serious disadvantages too.

- §51 - On the other hand, the physician has many remedial agents possessing greater advantages.
- §52 - There are thus two chief methods of treatment:
 - (a) The homoeopathic (similar),
 - (b) The allopathic (opposite)
- §53 - The pure homoeopathic art is the only correct method, only one possible way to cure natural diseases; it is unquestionable as pure experience teaches us a proper one, as it is based on the internal, infallible law of Nature.
- §54 - Antipathic, palliative allopathic method of treatment utilizes many things against diseases but usually improper ones; it comprises of so many systems; each one believes that in diseases only the morbid matter is to be removed; when these methods are classified and the materia medica are constructed these are full of conjunctures and compound prescriptions
- §55 - The allopathic method is palliative only.
- §56 - For the past seventeen centuries they hoped to win the confidence of their patients with these palliatives which are fundamentally unhelpful and hurtful methods of treatment that ought to have been avoided.
- §57 - Allopathic method only treats a single symptom of the disease with the medicine having an action opposite to the disease.
- §58 - Observations prove that after temporary relief, aggravation follows in every case with this method.
- §59 - Injurious effects of some antipathic modes of treatment.
- §60 - Increasing the dose at every palliation of the palliative never cures but induces further harm in chronically ill patients.
